ABOUT THE CREATOR & FACILITATOR

Rosalyn C. RainDancer

Growing up in a family of immigrant entrepreneurs, I inherited the old-fashioned values of strong work ethic, ironclad resilience, and an indomitable spirit of overcoming anything that could stand in the way of achieving success.

I started my first business when I was 16 years old when I taught myself how to make websites when the Internet just started to become accessible to the public. I used the money I earned making websites to pay for my university education.

My 20-year, non-traditional entrepreneurial journey has taken me to the heights of pioneering innovative, game-changing projects and ventures and having the external markers of success (the money, the corner office, the high-society peers, etc.). I've also been shaped and humbled by The School of Hard Knocks that brought me to depths of abysmal failures that cost me time, money and relationships. I know what it's like to make heart-breaking and gut-wrenching decisions that test your values and character. My journey has taught me that true success is not about the destination but who you become in the process.

Instead of impressing you with my achievements (you can find that on LinkedIn), I would rather get real with you about my mistakes, failures and heartache, because I've been there. My experience has led me to stand firmly in the belief that conscious leadership and personal healing is the foundation for sustainable success in business and in life, and that entrepreneurship is the most powerful vehicle for change in the world today.

Whatever challenge or problem you're experiencing in your business or career, I get it. My specialty is guiding and supporting people undergoing periods of birth, growth and death transition by introducing tools, training and strategies to navigate uncertainty with clarity, confidence, and resilience.
